Reflecting on Gandhiji's Vision: The Significance of Hindi as the National Language

In a thought-provoking lecture commemorating Hindi Diwas, Dr. Thippeswamy, a retired Hindi professor at the Babu Jagajivana Rao Study Center of Mysore University, shed light on Mahatma Gandhi's advocacy for Hindi as the national language of India. Hosted by JSS College of Arts, Commerce, and Science on Ooty road, Mysore, the event served as a platform to delve into the profound implications of Gandhiji's vision for linguistic unity and cultural preservation.

Dr. Thippeswamy elucidated Gandhiji's conviction in the unifying power of Hindi, emphasizing its role in fostering a sense of national identity among Indians. "Gandhiji knew that Hindi language was the best way for the unity of Indians. That's why he used Hindi in the work of self-building. He wanted all the business of India to be in Rashtra bhasa Hindi," remarked Dr. Thippeswamy, underscoring Gandhiji's foresight in recognizing Hindi as a catalyst for national integration.

Highlighting the contemporary relevance of Hindi in the socio-political landscape, Dr. Thippeswamy lamented the dilution of Hindi's significance in official discourse, stressing the need for greater emphasis on its usage in administrative and governance structures. He underscored the importance of translation efforts in promoting Hindi literature on regional and global platforms, thereby enriching its cultural legacy and expanding its influence beyond national borders.

Echoing Dr. Thippeswamy's sentiments, Prof. B.V. Sambashivaiah, the Chief Executive of the college, underscored the intrinsic link between language, culture, and economic development. "Language is a medium that helps in the exchange of ideas through sound-signs. Language is a very important dimension to identify the culture of the respective land. Similarly, language is necessary for growth, taste, and economy," stated Prof. Sambashivaiah emphasizing Hindi's pivotal role in shaping India's cultural tapestry and fostering economic prosperity.

Principal Prof. Somasekhar, the esteemed Chief Guest, underscored the accessibility and simplicity of Hindi, advocating for increased efforts to promote its learning among children. With a nod to the invaluable contribution of the Hindi department, Dr. Siddagangamma, HOD of Hindi Department, welcomed attendees, while expressions of gratitude were extended by Naveena and Nikil.

As the event concluded on a note of reverence for Hindi as a unifying force and custodian of India's rich cultural heritage, attendees departed with a renewed appreciation for Gandhiji's enduring legacy and the timeless relevance of his vision for linguistic harmony in the nation.

Kannada awareness is fading due to globalization

Prof. Mysore Krishnamurthy

In a poignant reflection on the erosion of Kannada consciousness amidst the forces of globalization, Prof. M. Krishnamurthy, a revered professor of Maharani College, underscored the importance of safeguarding Kannada identity and heritage. Speaking as the chief guest at the Kannada Rajyotsava celebration held at JSS College of Arts, Commerce, and Science on BN road, Mysore, Prof. Krishnamurthy lamented the encroachment of globalization on Kannada culture, emphasizing the need for concerted efforts to preserve and promote the language.

"The celebration of Kannada Rajyotsava is a symbol of diversity, sending a powerful message to the world," remarked Prof. Krishnamurthy, highlighting the significance of the occasion beyond regional boundaries. However, he expressed concern over the dilution of Kannada consciousness in the face of globalization, which he described as a threat to cultural integrity. "Globalization is destroying the Kannada consciousness just as it is destroying culture," he lamented, urging for renewed efforts to nurture and uphold Kannada identity in all spheres of life.

Echoing Prof. Krishnamurthy's sentiments, Prof. B.V. Sambashivaiah, the Chief Executive of the college, underscored the critical role of economic and political support in the preservation and promotion of Kannada language and literature. He lamented the lack of encouragement and commercialization of Kannada literature in contemporary times, calling for collective action to revitalize and sustain the language's rich cultural legacy.

The event, marked by expressions of cultural pride and solidarity, saw participation from Principal Prof. M. Mahadevappa and Principal of the Undergraduate College Mr. S. Somasekhara, who extended warm welcomes and heartfelt thanks, respectively. Dr. BS Sudeep, who compared the event, emphasized the importance of recognizing and celebrating Kannada identity as an integral part of Karnataka's rich cultural tapestry.

Making Memories: The Importance of a College Farewell Party

As the academic journey reaches its end, there is an air of nostalgia and celebration. The college farewell party stands as a cherished tradition, marking the end of a chapter filled with growth, friendships, and learning. Beyond being just a gathering, it's a significant milestone, an ode to shared experiences and a bridge to the future.

The farewell party isn't merely a farewell; it's a celebration of achievements and memories. It's a time to reflect on the transformative years spent together.

Incorporating interactive activities can engage everyone and create lasting memories. From awards ceremonies to photo booths capturing candid moments, these activities foster a sense of togetherness and laughter. Additionally, dedicated time for speeches or a heartfelt slideshow evokes the emotions and reinforces the significance of the occasion.

While bidding adieu may seem bittersweet, the farewell party is also a precursor to new beginnings. It's a chance to celebrate achievements and look forward to the future. Encouraging each other, sharing aspirations, and exchanging contact information keeps the bonds alive, ensuring that the connections forged in college extend far beyond its gates.

Dr. Mallikarjunaswamy, Mrs Kavya ,Ms Pramila and Mr Karthik were present in the program and addressed the students.

Heritage Club

Department of History

Definition of Heritage:

The development of conservation principles in the second half of the 20th century has been regarded by many as the most significant achievement of conservation activities, internationally. These principles or guidelines, promulgated either as charters, recommendations, resolutions, declarations or statements, were drafted and adopted mainly by international organisations, such as UNESCO and ICOMOS, with the main objective of protecting cultural property, which includes historical monuments, buildings, groups of buildings, sites and towns around the globe, against various threats. The most significant guideline was the International Charter for the Conservation and Restoration of Monuments and Sites, commonly known as the Venice Charter 1964,¹ which set a remarkable benchmark for principles governing architectural conservation and restoration. The Charter has helped to broaden the concept of historic buildings, the application of modern technology in conservation works, international cooperation and, most important of all, has provided a set of principles for the protection of architectural heritage and sites.

By the end of the 1960s the scope of heritage defined by the Venice Charter 1964 as historic monuments was interpreted somewhat differently by UNESCO and ICOMOS. Even though both organisations agreed in principle that heritage was no longer confined to historic monuments and buildings and should be extended to include groups of buildings and historic quarters, the terminology used was different; while UNESCO defined heritage as 'cultural property', ICOMOS defined heritage as 'monuments and sites'.

UNESCO Convention Concerning the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage, otherwise known as the World Heritage Convention 1972.5 The UNESCO Convention regarded heritage as both cultural heritage as well as natural heritage, and UNESCO's earlier definition of movable and immovable cultural property was dropped. The definition of monuments and sites as mentioned in the ICOMOS statutes adopted in 1965 was rephrased and a third category—groups of buildings—was introduced. Cultural heritage was now defined to include monuments, groups of buildings and sites. This was seen as a clear move to ensure that groups of buildings and urban settings were being protected. Cultural heritage was defined by UNESCO in 1972 as:

Article 1:1

Monuments: architectural works, works of monumental sculpture and painting, elements or structures of an archaeological nature, inscriptions, cave dwellings and combinations of features, which are of outstanding universal value from the point of view of history, art or science; groups of buildings: groups of separate or connected buildings which, because of their architecture, their homogeneity or their place in the landscape, are of outstanding universal value from the point of view of history, art or science; sites: works of man or the combined works of nature and of man, and areas including archaeological sites which are of outstanding universal value from the historical, aesthetic, ethnological or anthropological points of view.

Article 3b

group of buildings: shall include all groups of separate or connected buildings and their surroundings, whether urban or rural, which, because of their architecture, their homogeneity or their place in the landscape, are of value from the historical, artistic, scientific, social or ethnological point of view UNESCO terminology has remained unaltered to the present day. However, for the purpose of inscribing heritage on the World Heritage List the terminology was shifted from 'Cultural Heritage' to 'Cultural Properties' and 'Natural Heritage' to 'Natural Properties' In 1975 and 1979, respectively, the scope of heritage was again broadened to include historic gardens, landscape and environment. By the end of the 20th century, the scope of heritage, in general, was agreed internationally to include tangible and intangible heritage as well as environments. To better inform the international communities, in 1999 UNESCO clarified the scope of tangible values as cultural properties to include monuments, groups of buildings and sites (Article 23:5) and the scope of environments as natural properties (Article 43:10); and adopted the Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage (UNESCO, 2003), which defines 'intangible cultural heritage' as:

(Article 2:2)

The practices, representations, expressions, knowledge, skills—as well as the instruments, objects, artefacts and cultural spaces associated therewith—that communities, groups and, in some cases, individuals recognise as part of their cultural heritage. This intangible cultural heritage, transmitted from generation to generation, is constantly recreated by communities and groups in response to their environments, their interaction with nature and their history, and provides them with a sense of identity and continuity, thus promoting respect for cultural diversity and human creativity. This includes oral traditions and expressions, language, performing arts, social practices, rituals, festive events and traditional craftsmanship. For the last 40 years, since the adoption of the Venice Charter in 1964, there have been numerous conservation guidelines in the form of charters, recommendations, principles, and recommendations that, among others, have carefully defined the scope of heritage and its broader definitions. The scope has broadened considerably from mere concern for individual buildings and sites to include groups of buildings, historical areas, towns, environments, social factors and, lately, intangible heritage.
