Foreigners are fonder of Sanskrit language

Prof. T.N. Prabhakar

In a stirring tribute to the timeless allure of Sanskrit, Vidwan T.N. Prabhakar illuminated the enduring fascination with the language, not only among Indians but also among foreigners. Speaking at the inauguration of the Sanskrit Day program at JSS College of Arts, Commerce, and Science on Ooty Road, Mysore, Prabhakar recounted anecdotes highlighting the profound impact of Sanskrit on global consciousness.

Prabhakar's anecdotes vividly illustrated the universal appeal of Sanskrit, citing instances where renowned personalities like Dr. Gupta, a distinguished Indian scientist, and the Maharaja of Mysore, Nalwadi Krishnaraja Wodeyar, were captivated by the language's depth and richness. Dr. Gupta's encounter with Einstein, where Sanskrit was used as a medium of communication, and the Maharaja's interaction with foreigners underscored Sanskrit's enduring legacy as a language of scholarly discourse and cultural exchange.

Echoing Prabhakar's sentiments, Prof. B.V. Sambashivaiah, the Chief Executive Officer of the college, extolled Sanskrit as the world's oldest language and a repository of vast literary treasures. He emphasized Sanskrit's profound influence on global languages and its indispensable role in shaping the cultural fabric of India, including the rich literary tradition of Kannada. Prof. Sambashivaiah underscored the urgent need to preserve and promote Sanskrit in the face of its dwindling usage, calling upon the community to actively engage in its preservation and revitalization efforts.

The event witnessed the presence of esteemed dignitaries including Principal Prof. M.P. Vijayendrakumar and Principal of the Pre-University College, Mr. S. Somasekhara, underscoring the college's commitment to fostering a culture of linguistic diversity and academic excellence.

Assistant Professor Vidwan K. Srinidhi warmly welcomed attendees, setting the tone for an enlightening discourse on Sanskrit's enduring significance. Sri Guruprasad led a prayer, invoking blessings for the success of the event, while Assistant Professor Dr. Komala expressed gratitude to all participants for their invaluable contributions. Ms. Prerana and Ku. Tushar skillfully compared the proceedings, guiding the audience through a journey of cultural enrichment and linguistic appreciation.
